GPJNews_DRC_NN_DDRFailure-009-17/ 24-40: Jean Safari (dressed in a green jacket) and his teammate Damascene Fundi prepare to patrol the neighborhood, machete in hand as a weapon to protect their community from bandits. The two of them meet up with the others and start moving around the neighborhood until dawn. Since the local residents began patrolling, cases of banditry have diminished and they intend to continue keeping their own security.

GPJNews_DRC_NN_DDRFailure-001-8/ 18-23 : This is the Majengo district in the city of Goma, in northern DRC, where cases of insecurity used to rage. Today, the district is more or less calm thanks to the patrols carried out by the population. Other insecure neighborhoods, such as Mabanga, have also started patrolling.
